"The Literary Bridge"

3D interior shot for The Literary Bridge

My project creates a new kind of bridge structure that connects spaces between two buildings in the city. In providing a bridge link opportunities arise for new routes through the urban environment and for new connections to be made between Manchester's cosmopolitan populations.

Apart from this physical connection new connections are made between culture and society where ideas can be shared, discussed, reflected upon. The space itself will create a barrier to digital transmissions and allow for time out and for reading and a sharing of knowledge and understanding.

Slowing down can be good, a positive and thought provoking action. In this "literary bridge", the books provide a societal glue and chance to bond away from digital chatter.

A key feature in this project is that it bridge is divided into five zones including a lending library, "coffee and social space", the "floor book display" zone, "quote of the day" stop and the "grab and go" zone .
